Kayne Anderson Rudnick serves as investment adviser under certain wrap programs and as investment sub-adviser under other wrap programs, and at times acts in both capacities under different programs sponsored by the same financial-services firm. Wrap program sponsors typically offer comprehensive brokerage, custodial, and advisory services for a single “wrap fee,” based on a percentage of assets under management. The wrap sponsor pays Kayne Anderson Rudnick a portion of the wrap fee in connection with the advisory services it provides. Under some arrangements, the wrap sponsor and Kayne Anderson Rudnick each charge a separate fee for their respective services. The wrap sponsor’s services generally include, in addition to assistance with the selection of one or more investment advisers, asset allocation advice, execution of portfolio transactions (free of commissions), custodial services, including trade confirmation and periodic reporting, continuing evaluation of investment performance, and consultation on investment objectives and suitability.

Wrap account clients generally only invest in Kayne Anderson Rudnick’s model strategies. Non-wrap clients also invest in Kayne Anderson Rudnick’s model strategies. The client should consider, depending upon the level of the single fee charged under a wrap program, the package of services provided. circumstances prevail, and arrangements with any particular client can vary. Mutual funds, ETFs, and Alternative Investments bear their own operating expenses, including compensation paid to their advisers and other service providers as well as other expenses and fees. This information is disclosed in a fund's prospectus or offering documents. Third party professionals that Kayne Anderson Rudnick may introduce will have their own separate fee engagement with the client and those professionals' services are not included in our fee schedule with the client.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

For proprietary strategies, the goal of the firm’s research process is to identify companies with business models that provide competitive protections and control over their markets. The research process is designed to develop a deep understanding of the sources of these competitive protections and control. Further, this analysis must lead to a high level of conviction that these protections and controls can be sustained going forward for a security to be considered for investment.

Once a company is identified for further research, the firm’s research process begins with an analysis of the company’s financial statements. In terms of the balance sheet, Kayne Anderson Rudnick looks for companies with high intellectual capacity and low capital intensity. This typically results in low debt and high free cash flow. In terms of the income statement, Kayne Anderson Rudnick looks for companies with lower overall fixed costs as this leads to earnings that are more durable and stable. In terms of the cash flow statement, Kayne Anderson Rudnick looks for companies with abundant cash which increases management’s ability to focus on shareholders.

The investment team also thoroughly and consistently reviews regulatory filings, press releases, and industry data. They speak with competitors and customers. They conduct comprehensive interviews with management and evaluate their long-term strategic decision-making rather than short-term quarterly earnings. They assess their ability to effectively manage and allocate the business’ capital.

The firm’s valuation analysis determines the current and potential value of the business. Kayne Anderson Rudnick utilizes a variety of proprietary valuation models to establish the value of each company under base, best, and worst-case scenarios. Valuation is determined on an absolute basis as well as relative to other available opportunities.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick relies primarily on internally generated research when making investment decisions. Kayne Anderson Rudnick’s principal sources of information include the public filings of issuers with governmental authorities, issuers’ annual reports to stockholders, industry data, interactions with management via the telephone or the web, industry conferences, and where appropriate and feasible, company visits and conversations with suppliers and competitors. In addition, trade publications and statistical material are furnished by outside vendors. Kayne Anderson Rudnick also considers research furnished by broker-dealers and other industry members.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick invests principally in “traditional” equity securities (U.S. common stocks, foreign stocks (ordinary and ADR), and equivalents) traded on or in a recognized exchange or market. It uses a disciplined investment process to identify high-quality companies available at reasonable prices. This process focuses on consistently growing, highly profitable, low-debt companies with rising cash flows, and also considers strength of management and relative competitive position. Kayne Anderson Rudnick’s principal portfolio strategies include large-cap equities and small to mid-cap equities. Kayne Anderson Rudnick also offers other, more specialized or concentrated equity strategies.

For wealth advisory clients, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can invest the assets of these clients through sub-advisors and third-party managers. In reviewing investment opportunities, Kayne Anderson Rudnick conducts due diligence and research on the sub-advisors and third-party managers to satisfy itself as to the suitability of the third-party manager and sub-advisor. Kayne Anderson Rudnick also invests in an array of high-quality, fixed-income securities that focus on intermediate-term bonds. Kayne Anderson Rudnick offers both taxable and tax-free fixed-income strategies. Additionally, Kayne Anderson Rudnick offers cash management services.

The Risks of Investing

The investment performance and the success of any investment strategy or particular investment can never be predicted or guaranteed, and the value of a client's investment will fluctuate due to market conditions and other factors. The investment decision made and the actions taken for client accounts will be subject to various market, liquidity, currency, economic, political and other risks, and will not necessarily be profitable and may lose value. Prospective clients are encouraged to consult their own financial advisors and legal and tax professionals on an initial and continuous basis in connection with selecting and engaging the services of Kayne Anderson Rudnick for a particular strategy. In addition, due to the dynamic nature of investments and markets, strategies may be subject to additional and different risk factors not discussed herein.

The value of your portfolio can be affected by one or more of the following risks, any of which could cause the portfolio's return or the portfolio's yield to fluctuate:

- Market Risk: The value of your portfolio's assets will fluctuate as the stock or bond market fluctuates. The value of your investments can decline, sometimes rapidly and unpredictably, simply because of economic changes or other events that affect large portions of the market.
- Management Risk: Your portfolio is subject to management risk because it is actively managed by Kayne Anderson Rudnick's investment professionals. Kayne Anderson Rudnick applies its investment techniques and risk analyses in making decisions for your portfolio, but there is no guarantee that these techniques and our judgment will produce the intended results.
- Foreign (Non-U.S.) Risk: Your portfolio's investments in securities of non-U.S. issuers can involve more risk than those of U.S. issuers. These equities can fluctuate more widely in price and be less liquid due to adverse market, economic, political, and regulatory or other factors.
- Capitalization Risk: Investments in small and mid-capitalization companies are typically more volatile than investments in large cap companies. Investments in small-cap companies can have additional risks because these companies have limited product lines, markets or financial resources.
- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity risk exists when particular investments are difficult to purchase or sell, possibly preventing us from selling out of such illiquid securities at an advantageous price.
- Emerging Market Investing Risk: The risk that prices of emerging markets securities will be more volatile, or will be more greatly affected by negative conditions, than those of their counterparts in more established foreign markets.
- Market Direction Risk: A portfolio will typically hold both long and short positions, an investment in the portfolio will involve market risks associated with different types of investment decisions than those made for a typical "long only" portfolio. The portfolio's results could suffer when there is a general market advance and the portfolio holds significant "short" positions, or when there is a general market decline and the portfolio holds significant "long" positions. The markets may have considerable volatility from day to day and even in intra-day trading (applicable only to Long/Short Strategy).
- Concentration/Diversification Risk: An account's concentration of investments in securities of issuers a limited number of issuers, industries, sectors, countries, states or regions subjects an account to conditions that may adversely impact the area of concentration. In addition, concentration of investments of issuers located in a particular state subjects an account to government policies within that state. Similarly, a concentrated account may invest a large portion of its assets in a fewer number of issuers than an account with a larger number of positions. If a relatively high percentage of an account's assets may be invested in the securities of a limited number of issuers, an account may be more susceptible to any single, economic, political or regulatory occurrence than a more diversified portfolio.
- Currency Rate Risk: Because the foreign securities in which an account may invest generally trade in currencies other than the U.S. dollar, changes in currency exchange rates will affect the value of an account, the value of dividends and interest earned, and gains and losses realized on the sale of securities. Because the value of account's shares is calculated in U.S. dollars, it is possible for the account to lose money by investing in a foreign security if the local currency of a foreign market depreciates against the U.S. dollar, even if the local currency value of the account's holdings goes up. Generally, a strong U.S. dollar relative to such other currencies will adversely affect the value of the account's holdings in foreign securities.
- Business Continuity Risk: Kayne Anderson Rudnick has adopted a business continuation strategy to maintain critical functions in the event of a partial or total building outage affecting our offices or a technical problem affecting applications, data centers or networks. The recovery strategies are designed to limit the impact on clients from any business interruption or disaster. Nevertheless, our ability to conduct business can be curtailed by a disruption in the infrastructure that supports our operations.
- Cybersecurity Risk: In addition to the risks associated to the value of investments, there are various operational, systems, information security and related risks involved in investing, including but not limited to "cybersecurity" risk. A breach in cybersecurity refers to both intentional and unintentional events that may cause an account to lose proprietary information such as misappropriating sensitive information, access to digital systems to obtain client and financial information, corrupting data, or causing operational disruption. Similar adverse consequences could result from cybersecurity incidents affecting counterparties with which we engage in transactions, third-party service providers (e.g. a client account's custodian), governmental and other regulatory authorities, exchange and other financial market operators, banks, broker dealers and other financial institutions and other parties.

- Extraordinary Events : Global terrorist activity and United States involvement in armed conflict may negatively affect general economic fortunes, including sales, profits, and production, and may lead to depressed securities prices, and problems with trading facilities and infrastructure.
- Municipal Securities Risk: Litigation, legislation or other political events, local business or economic conditions, or bankruptcy of the issuer could have a significant effect on the issuer's ability to make payments of principal and/or interest or otherwise affect the value of such securities. The value of these securities may decline because of a market perception that the issuer may not make payments on time.
- Credit risk: Debt securities are subject to the risk that an issuer will fail to make timely payments of interest or principal, or be bankrupt, or that the value of the securities will decline because of a market perception that the issuer may not make payments on time. The lower the rating of a debt security, the higher its credit risk.
- Interest Rate Risk: Debt securities will generally lose value if interest rates increase. U.S. Government securities can exhibit price movements resulting from changes in interest rates. Interest rate risk is generally higher for investments with longer maturities or durations. Treasury Inflation Protected securities ("TIPS") can also exhibit price movements as a result of changing inflation expectations and seasonal inflation patterns.
- Sub-Advisor and Third-Party Managers Risk: The success of an account's investment through sub-advisors and/or third-party managers in general is subject to a variety of risks, including those related to (i) the quality of the management of the sub-advisor and/or third-party manager; (ii) the quality of the management of the operating companies and the ability of such management to develop and maintain successful business enterprises; and (iii) the ability of a sub-advisor and/or third-party manager to successfully source investment opportunities, operate and manage their investments.
- Asset Allocation Risk: The asset classes in which a Client Account seeks investment exposure can perform differently from each other at any given time (as well as over the long term), so Client Account will be affected by its allocation among equity securities, debt securities, alternatives, and cash equivalent securities.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick has established procedures to comply, at a minimum, with federal law. In addition, employees are required to certify on a quarterly basis that they have reported all applicable monetary political contributions and that the contributions met certain standards.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Kayne Anderson Rudnick considers best execution to encompass the most favorable overall cost or proceeds that can be reasonably obtained for a transaction under current circumstances surrounding the trade. Kayne Anderson Rudnick generally determines the broker through whom securities transactions are to be affected. In selecting brokers for a portfolio transaction, Kayne Anderson Rudnick considers, without limitation, the overall direct net economic results to an account. When executing client transactions with unaffiliated broker-dealers, Kayne Anderson Rudnick allocates client transactions to such broker-dealers for execution, in its good faith judgment and in the best interest of the client, taking into consideration available prices and brokerage commission rates, as well as other relevant factors. Relevant factors include: (1) execution capabilities and research, (2) custodial and other services expected to enhance the general portfolio management capabilities of Kayne Anderson Rudnick, (3) the size of the transaction, (4) the difficulty of execution, (5) the operational facilities of the broker-dealer, (6) the risk in positioning a block of securities, (7) the quality of the overall brokerage and research services provided, (8) the value of an ongoing relationship with such broker-dealers, and (9) access to liquidity.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick may utilize the services of a trade and/or settlement aggregator (an “Aggregator”) when placing block orders. Kayne Anderson Rudnick believes that the use of an Aggregator can address issues associated with market fragmentation, including, but not limited to, additional clearing/settlement costs associated with the executions through multiple trading venues, by enabling Kayne Anderson Rudnick to access multiple pools of liquidity while minimizing clearing/settlement costs. The cost of the aggregation service is included in the commission rates or net prices associated with the underlying trades.

Step-out trades are trades in which an executing broker-dealer executes an order, but agrees to allocate a designated portion of the order for clearance and settlement by another broker-dealer. The executing broker-dealer clears and settles the portion of the order not stepped out, and can add a charge to the overall cost of the trade. Kayne Anderson Rudnick utilizes “step-out” trades to guard against information leakage and minimize market impact during trading, and to obtain best execution. Kayne Anderson Rudnick may seek to work with one, or a limited number of brokers, that is not the sponsor’s broker who can access a wider variety of liquidity sources up to and including finding a natural counterparty. These firms may have particular industry expertise or may be able to provide “high-touch capabilities.” By consolidating our trade executions to a limited number of brokers, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can more efficiently transact on behalf of all of our clients while at the same time limiting leakage. Step-out trades may benefit clients by allowing Kayne Anderson Rudnick to find liquidity and execute trades with natural buyers and sellers on terms more favorable than might otherwise be available in the market.

For directed brokerage accounts, where Kayne Anderson Rudnick has trading discretion over a client account, Kayne Anderson Rudnick will typically perform two types of trades for our clients. One type of trade is called a “portfolio model change” trade, which is the purchase or sale of securities for our portfolios in one or more of our investment strategies. By its nature, this trade will affect many clients at once. These trades may be executed through a “step-out transaction”, meaning that they are traded away from the client’s Directed Firm for execution purposes (described above). The second type of trade is referred to as an “incidental” trade. Incidental trading reflects individual activity in client’s account, such as initial investment positioning, rebalancing due to addition or withdrawals of cash or securities, account liquidation, or other account specific transactions such as client directed tax transactions. These trades will generally be executed as orders with client’s Directed Firm. Kayne Anderson Rudnick generally steps-out 50 to 75 percent of directed brokerage trades., depending on the investment strategy utilized.

Sponsors and/or custodians of directed accounts and dual contract accounts can also charge additional fees for any trades that are stepped out to another broker-dealer. Confirmations from Sponsors with respect to “step-out” or “trade away” trades in Sponsor accounts and dual contract accounts can reflect, within the price per share, applicable net costs instead of reflecting this as a separate item on the confirmation. A wrap client can incur an additional “net” trade cost if a trade is made away from their wrap sponsor. For fixed-income trades, the commission is not generally shown on the trade confirmation, but is reflected in the negotiated price of the bond. Kayne Anderson Rudnick believes that it is able to effect trades away from the designated broker in order to obtain best execution without jeopardizing its business relationships and, in any case, its policy and practice is to act in the best interest of its clients. Directed brokerage clients that do not allow Kayne Anderson Rudnick to participate in step-out trades may pay a higher cost than clients that allow Kayne Anderson Rudnick to participate in step-out trades. Accounts that participate in step-out trades can incur additional transaction costs.

In situations where a client has directed Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use particular broker-dealers, or where certain trades need to be handled separately from other orders, these trades may be delayed until the completion of other orders rather than being executed simultaneously. This is done to avoid multiple orders from Kayne Anderson Rudnick competing with itself for execution. Likewise, it avoids the excessive market impact that could result if the market thought multiple broker-dealers were working orders. Directed accounts that do not allow Kayne Anderson Rudnick to participate in step out trades and are not able to participate in a block trade may be placed in a separate rotation so as to not disadvantage all other accounts.

Clients can also establish a bank custodial account and authorize Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use any broker-dealer with whom Kayne Anderson Rudnick has negotiated institutional-level commission rates. These bank custodian accounts can provide access to other bank services that are of value to the client. In addition, these “free-trading” accounts provide Kayne Anderson Rudnick with a level of flexibility that benefits the client’s ability to participate in block trades. As a result, bank custodial arrangements are usually more attractive to larger, institutional accounts. However, clients should consider the custodial fees charged by a bank custodian in evaluating this alternative.

With respect to its discretionary client accounts, Kayne Anderson Rudnick generally has full authority to determine the broker-dealers through which transactions for the discretionary client accounts are executed. Kayne Anderson Rudnick generally selects such broker-dealers and determines the commission rates payable to such brokers-dealers in the manner described above.

Directed Brokerage

Kayne Anderson Rudnick accepts direction from clients regarding the brokers to be used for such clients' accounts. Clients may have existing arrangements permitting them to offset certain administration, accounting, custody, consultant, or other fees in relation to the amount of brokerage transactions handled by a specific broker. At the same time, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can have arrangements to receive investment-related research products or services provided by the same intermediary, which are separate from the clients' direction, to use a particular broker to execute either all or part of the brokerage transactions from their accounts. Commission rates and execution quality obtainable from the Directed Broker may be less favorable than those obtainable from other brokers for various reasons, including: 1) Generally, orders subject to Client Brokerage Direction cannot be aggregated with contemporaneous orders for Non-Directed Accounts and therefore cannot benefit from any commissions discounts that may apply to larger orders; 2) Directed Brokers may achieve less favorable prices than brokers we would select based on execution capability and 3) Client Brokerage Direction limits our ability to negotiate commissions rates charged by Directed Brokers.

Those direct fee clients who seek advice from Kayne Anderson Rudnick on broker selection have many options available to them. These options include discounted brokerage firms, such as Charles Schwab and Company ("Schwab") and Fidelity Investments ("Fidelity"), and clients may also choose to become a retail client of the many other unaffiliated brokerage firms with which Kayne Anderson Rudnick conducts business. The commission rates (and the minimum ticket charges) charged by the discount firms are generally more favorable than retail rates normally charged by full service brokerage firms. However, full service firms may offer additional services of value to the client. Commission rates are subject to change from time to time and clients are encouraged to inquire into the rates available to them at the time they engage Kayne Anderson Rudnick, or at any other time.

Other than to satisfy its obligation to seek best execution, Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not have authority to determine the broker-dealer(s) to be used for a wrap account or for a direct fee account when the client has directed Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use a specific broker-dealer.

Trade Aggregation And Allocation

As part of its effort to obtain best execution, Kayne Anderson Rudnick aggregates orders, or a "block trade," for several clients. Kayne Anderson Rudnick believes that aggregation or "bunching" orders may result in a more favorable overall execution. Each client that participates in a block trade receives the average share price and, subject to individually negotiated commission and/or fee arrangements, a pro rata portion of the transaction cost. Because clients have different brokerage relationships, some client accounts may not be eligible to participate in block trades.

When directed trades for selected accounts are placed through a brokerage firm other than that which is executing the block trade, those trades can trail the complete block-trading program. The prices of those securities could have already have been impacted by the prior block trade, so that the cost or sales price of the securities in the directed account will not necessarily be the same as those executed as part of the block. Therefore, performance of the directed account can differ from that of the non-directed accounts.

Clients should be aware that some types of purchase or sale transactions cannot be included in aggregated orders. For instance, trades resulting from the opening and closing of accounts, from contributions or withdrawals from existing accounts, or accounts with highly particularized investment policies or restrictions. In such cases, clients may not receive as favorable executions as they might otherwise receive from aggregated orders.

In general, all accounts that participate in a block transaction participate on a percentage, pro rata, or other objective basis, as described below. Adjustments in the number of securities acquired for or sold by a particular account are made in order to meet certain requirements, e.g., to maintain round lots, to fill to specific percentages, to avoid crossing certain ownership thresholds. The standard allocation methodologies are as follows:

- a. Pro rata allocation will generally consist of weighted allocation based on account size whereby each account will receive a portion of the order based on the account's current market value relative to other account participating in the transaction. If no other allocation method is selected, allocation will be effected on a pro rata basis.
- b. Random by Account can be used in place of a pro rata allocation. In a percentage allocation, each client receives or achieves a specifically sized position, e.g., buying or selling to result in a 1% position based on the current market value of client's account or that portion of the account under the portfolio manager's management. In the case of a partial fill of a block transaction, a percentage allocation methodology will result in some account receiving no allocation. In such cases, a formal or informal (such as random selection) system will be employed to achieve rough equity in time.
- c. Other objective allocation methodologies can be utilized provided they are employed with general consistency and operate fairly, e.g. doubling up on the size of positions taken for certain accounts.
- d. Standard allocation methods can be modified when common sense dictates that strict adherence to the usual allocation is impractical or leads to inefficient or undesirable results.

Rotation is used with the standard allocation methodology to seek fair access for all groupings of clients over time to trading opportunities.

Fill rotation is used in conjunction with other allocation methodologies. "Fill rotation" simply means rotating the clients or groups of clients in order of fill so that, over time, all clients get a fair percentage of their transaction filled earlier in the sequence.

Rotation is an important principle in assuring that all accounts are treated equitably over time. It is an appropriate allocation tool when the transaction size is too limited to be effectively allocated among all accounts, when the price is too sensitive to trade for all client accounts, and in other situations where allocation across multiple clients may not be desirable.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick has designed its rotation process to provide all clients with fair access to trading. Kayne Anderson Rudnick maintains various trading groups for our clients. The trading groups are generally defined by business lines across the Firm, and can include institutional, wealth advisory, wrap and model only accounts. Kayne Anderson Rudnick rotates among the various trading groups on a random basis.

- Portfolio model changes trigger an internal set of trading instructions and program rotation, i.e., order of the trading groups. Not all investment strategies have accounts in all trading groups; therefore not all trading groups are in every program.
- Program rotation is determined by a random number algorithm generated within our systems.
- When Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not trade for a UMA/model sponsor program, Kayne Anderson Rudnick notifies the UMA/model sponsor program when they are up in the rotation.
- The program rotation is followed until all trades are complete
- Kayne Anderson Rudnick may change its rotation under certain circumstances. Changes to the stated rotation will be documented.

As it is not in the best interest of our clients to have firms buying or selling the same security for the same portfolio at the same time, Kayne Anderson Rudnick needs to be aware of when each of our Model Only participants are trading our securities. A model Program that retains trading authority will be included in our trade rotation if: 1) we believe that the sponsor has the ability to complete its trading efficiently and promptly; 2) the model program agrees to notify us as soon as their trading is complete and promptly provide us with reports and other information related to their trading, as we request; and 3) it satisfies other conditions that we may reasonably establish. This ensures that Kayne Anderson Rudnick will have seamless rotation within each of the trading programs. Trading throughout the day, not missing valuable liquidity and advantageous prices is paramount to achieving best execution, not only for Kayne Anderson Rudnick clients but for the clients of our Model Only sponsors as well. If a Model Only sponsor does not abide by Kayne Anderson Rudnick's notification process, at Kayne Anderson Rudnick's discretion these Model Only sponsors will be placed in a subsequent rotation.

The market price of small-cap securities generally is more volatile than that of more liquid securities, which can adversely affect the price that a client pays for or recovers upon the sale of a small-cap security. Small-cap securities can be difficult to dispose of at a fair price or rapidly when a client terminates an account.

Investments in securities of non-U.S. issuers can involve more risk than those of U.S. issuers. These equities can fluctuate more widely in price and be less liquid due to adverse market, economic, political, regulatory or other factors. Trades on foreign exchanges may incur greater transactions charges than trades on the U.S. Exchanges.

Fixed-Income Practices

Fixed-income trade allocations are usually determined prior to the placement of a trade. However, in those circumstances where an order is only partially filled or when a security is acquired prior to determining the allocation, the trader allocates the trade in a manner that is fair and equitable to all affected accounts.

Securities for fixed-income discretionary accounts are traded either through competitive bids/offers, by comparison of bids/offers, or through comparison of price level with levels seen in the market. In the case of broker directed trades, every effort is made to bring the trade price in-line with the institutional market.

When purchasing municipal bonds for discretionary accounts, comparisons are made between the bond being offered and bonds with similar characteristics trading in the market at the time. Comparisons are made based on credit name, structure (e.g., coupon, maturity, and call/put options), underlying credit rating, credit enhancement, municipal sector, etc. When selling municipal bonds for broker discretionary accounts, multiple bids are sought. In the case of broker directed trades, every effort is made to bring the trade price in line with the institutional market. On broker directed accounts where the client or broker does not allow the Adviser to step-out the trades, the client could incur a higher cost than broker discretionary accounts.

Research And Other Soft Dollar Benefits

Subject to applicable law and regulation, Kayne Anderson Rudnick directs brokerage commissions for research and brokerage services. Kayne Anderson Rudnick has established a Best Execution Committee, consisting of members from Administration, Trading, Portfolio Management, and Compliance. The Best Execution Committee reports to the Risk and Compliance Committee. The Best Execution Committee generally meets quarterly to review brokerage allocation activity of the firm, to identify the quality of execution and settlement services provided, reviews the approved broker list, and the value to client portfolios of the purchased product or service. Soft dollar arrangements are reviewed by the Best Execution Committee and initially approved by the COO and CCO.

Subject to Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can pay a broker a commission in excess of that which another broker might have charged for effecting the same transaction, in recognition of the value of the brokerage and research services provided by or through the broker. Kayne Anderson Rudnick may have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on its interest in receiving research or other products or services rather than in the clients' interest in receiving a better commission rate. Kayne Anderson Rudnick believes that it is important to its investment decision making processes to have access to independent research. Research furnished by brokers can be used to service any or all of Kayne Anderson Rudnick's clients and is used in connection with accounts other than those making the payment to the broker providing the research, as permitted by Section 28(e). Only brokerage commissions from certain client accounts are used to pay for the research services furnished by brokers. Kayne Anderson Rudnick uses these research services to service all of its accounts and not just the account whose transactions paid for the research services. It is possible that the accounts whose transactions generate brokerage commissions that are used to pay some of Kayne Anderson Rudnick's research obligations may not benefit in any way from this specific research.

Brokerage and research services provided by brokers falling within the Section 28(e) safe harbor can include, but are not limited to, providing information regarding the economy, industries, sectors of securities, individual companies, statistical information, technical market action, pricing and appraisal services, risk-measurement analysis, and performance analytics. Such research services are received primarily in the form of written reports, telephone contact and personal meetings with securities analysts or company management.

In addition, such research services can be provided in the form of access to various computer-generated data and access to conferences and seminars.

In some cases, research services are generated by third parties but are provided to Kayne Anderson Rudnick by or through brokers. Kayne Anderson Rudnick uses a variety of securities quotation hardware and software for day-to-day portfolio management of some or all of its accounts. Most of the services include additional statistics, analytical tools, and news used solely for portfolio management purposes. Kayne Anderson Rudnick has entered into Commission Sharing Arrangements (CSAs) as a means to facilitate soft dollar payments. CSAs enable Kayne Anderson Rudnick to pool commission dollars generated in trades with certain brokers to be aggregated and distributed to other brokers to pay for investment research. This allows Kayne Anderson Rudnick to compensate research providers who do not have brokerage operations where traditional soft dollars can be credited through trade execution or where, in support of Kayne Anderson Rudnick's policy to seek best execution, Kayne Anderson Rudnick's traders decide that a research provider's trading desk may not be capable of executing Kayne Anderson Rudnick's orders as effectively as other brokers.

Suggestion Of Brokers

A client may instruct Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use a specified broker-dealer for such client's account, although Kayne Anderson Rudnick reserves the right not to accept such instruction in cases where it does not have a working relationship with the designated broker-dealer. However, the client should generally be aware that, where it directs Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use a specific broker-dealer: (1) A higher commission rate (or fees in the case of wrap program accounts) may be paid by such client, in part because of additional services which may be available from such broker-dealer as well as Kayne Anderson Rudnick's inability to negotiate the commission rate or obtain volume discounts when the client's transaction is combined with those of other clients in a block trade; and (2) The execution of trades for the client by the designated broker-dealer could result in failure to receive the best execution in some transactions. Kayne Anderson Rudnick is generally required by wrap program sponsors to direct trades for client accounts in such programs to such sponsors or their affiliates.

A client who directs Kayne Anderson Rudnick to use a particular broker-dealer, including a client who directs use of a broker-dealer that also serves as a custodian (whether or not recommended by Kayne Anderson Rudnick), should consider whether commissions, expenses, execution, clearance and settlement charges, and custodial fees, if applicable, are comparable to those otherwise obtainable by Kayne Anderson Rudnick.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick can benefit by receiving new client referrals from Schwab, Fidelity, or other broker-dealers who earn commissions on trades for accounts of existing clients of Kayne Anderson Rudnick, and, as a result, a conflict can arise between Kayne Anderson Rudnick's interest in such referrals and its obligation to seek the best execution of client trades.

Cross Transactions

Where appropriate, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can engage in inter-account transactions or cross transactions with eligible advisory accounts and will comply with the applicable disclosure and consent requirements associated with such transactions under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. To reduce transaction costs and promote trading efficiency for mutual fund clients, Kayne Anderson Rudnick can engage in inter-account transactions consistent with procedures adopted pursuant to Rule 17a-7 under the Investment Company Act of 1940.

Initial Public Offerings (IPO's)

From time to time, Kayne Anderson Rudnick may be offered securities in an initial public offering ("IPO") and Kayne Anderson Rudnick will determine in its sole discretion whether to accept any such offer. Generally, Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not accept offers to participate in IPOs. In the event that Kayne Anderson Rudnick accepts an offer of IPO securities, Kayne Anderson Rudnick's policy is to allocate the securities proportionally, based on asset value, among client portfolios for which the securities are deemed suitable. Suitability will be determined by Kayne Anderson Rudnick's Portfolio Managers and Portfolio Administration team based on a number of factors, including but not limited to, investment goals, existing securities in the portfolio available cash and purchasing power, portfolio investment restrictions. Kayne Anderson Rudnick's Compliance team reviews the IPOs. A small IPO offering may be allocated only to one client portfolio, if Kayne Anderson Rudnick determines in its sole discretion that allocation among more than one client portfolio would be inefficient. While generally based on objective criteria Kayne Anderson Rudnick's allocation of any specific IPO offering may not result in proportional allocation across all its client portfolios. Kayne Anderson Rudnick however, will treat all client portfolios fairly and will not give preferences to any particular client or type of clients when allocating IPOs.

Error Correction

Although Kayne Anderson Rudnick takes all reasonable steps to avoid errors in our trading process, occasionally errors do occur. It is our policy that trade errors be identified and resolved promptly, and resolved in a manner consistent with Kayne Anderson Rudnick's fiduciary duty to its clients. Consistent with this duty, the overriding goal in trade error resolution is to seek to place the client in the same position that the client would have been in had the error not occurred. There is no single method of calculating gains, losses or compensation due as a result of a trade error. The determination of which method is highly dependent on the facts and circumstances of an error. Kayne Anderson Rudnick will determine the most appropriate calculation methodology on a case-by-case basis in light of the specific facts and circumstances of each trade error.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

A record-keeping account is established and maintained on Kayne Anderson Rudnick's portfolio accounting system for each managed client account. Among other pertinent data, information concerning the client's investment objectives and guidelines is maintained as part of the account records. This information identifies such matters as overall investment strategy, asset allocation targets and cash distribution requirements, as well as any special portfolio restrictions. In the case of wrap programs where Kayne Anderson Rudnick serves as investment sub-adviser, the program sponsor maintains and provides Kayne Anderson Rudnick with electronic access to the information contained in client record-keeping accounts because trading is conducted through the Wrap Sponsor's trading platform.

Generally, each account is invested using an approved model portfolio for the chosen strategy. Some direct client accounts are invested with adjustments to the model portfolio where directed by the client because of tax and other special circumstances. As a result, such accounts can be weighted differently or hold securities not in the model portfolio; these accounts will vary from the model for various reasons. Once initially invested, the account is continuously monitored for any drift or variance from the model portfolio weightings and client guidelines. This process is conducted by our portfolio management associates, investment advisor associates, and equity traders. The number of accounts reviewed by each person varies based on the type of account. Kayne Anderson Rudnick's Compliance Department may perform random account reviews. These reviews can cover various facets, including, but not limited to, comparing an account's strategy and/or allocation to the account's stated risk tolerance or objectives, and reviewing the billing rate Kayne Anderson Rudnick manages accounts on a discretionary basis and has full authority in determining which securities are purchased and sold. Kayne Anderson Rudnick normally sells some or all of the securities in a client account after the initial receipt of the account or the deposit of additional securities into the account. Some securities are normally retained in the account to the extent that they are included in Kayne Anderson Rudnick's model holdings for such an account or if so requested by the client. The client is responsible for any tax liabilities which result from such transactions.

Generally, for direct fee accounts, Kayne Anderson Rudnick is available to meet with the client at least once a year or, in some cases, as often as quarterly if requested by the client. Account reviews are conducted with clients by the client service representatives, with the assistance of the portfolio managers, as appropriate. Wrap fee accounts (both advisory and sub-advisory) have access to the same personnel through their respective program sponsors or they may contact us directly at any time. Direct accounts can be provided (i) quarterly (in some cases, monthly) reports identifying holdings and performance and (ii) if taxable, annual reports identifying realized gains/losses, and interest and dividends received. Based upon the sponsor's preference, generally wrap program accounts (other than sub-advisory accounts) are provided quarterly reports identifying holdings and, for some programs, performance.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Kayne Anderson Rudnick maintains contractual agreements with unaffiliated parties who refer clients to Kayne Anderson Rudnick for compensation. Such referral sources may be registered investment advisers. All referral agreements are made in writing pursuant to Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick has a solicitation agreement with Allan Rudnick, a founder of Kayne Anderson Rudnick, who refers clients to Kayne Anderson Rudnick for compensation. Kayne Anderson Rudnick has a cross solicitation agreement with Kayne Anderson Capital Advisors, L.P., a former affiliate, whereby they agree to engage each other to solicit investment advisory business.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick participates in the Fidelity Wealth Advisor Solutions Program (the "WAS Program"), through which Kayne Anderson Rudnick receives referrals from Strategic Advisers, Inc. ("SAI"), a registered investment adviser and subsidiary of FMR LLC, the parent company of Fidelity Investments.

Under the WAS Program, SAI acts as a solicitor for Kayne Anderson Rudnick, and Kayne Anderson Rudnick pays referral fees to SAI for each referral received based on Kayne Anderson Rudnick's assets under management attributable to each client referred by SAI or members of each client's household. The WAS program is designed to help investors find an independent investment advisor, and any referral from SAI to Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not constitute a recommendation or endorsement by SAI of Kayne Anderson Rudnick's particular investment management services or strategies. More specifically, Kayne Anderson Rudnick pays the following amounts to SAI for referrals; for referrals made prior to April 1, 2017, an annual percentage of 0.20% of any and all assets in client accounts, for referrals made after April 1, 2017, the sum of (i) an annual percentage of 0.10% of any and all assets in client accounts where such assets are identified as "fixed income" assets by SAI and (ii) an annual percentage of 0.25% of all other assets held in client accounts. For referrals made prior to April 1, 2017, these fees are payable for a maximum of seven years. Fees with respect to referrals made after that date are not subject to the seven year limitation. In addition, Kayne Anderson Rudnick has agreed to pay SAI a minimum annual fee amount in connection with its participation in the WAS Program. These referral fees are paid by Kayne Anderson Rudnick and not the client.

To receive referrals from the WAS Program, Kayne Anderson Rudnick must meet certain minimum participation criteria, but Kayne Anderson Rudnick may have been selected for participation in the WAS Program as a result of its other business relationships with SAI and its affiliates, including Fidelity Brokerage Services, LLC ("FBS"). As a result of its participation in the WAS Program, Kayne Anderson Rudnick may have a potential conflict of interest with respect to its decision to use certain affiliates of SAI, including FBS, for execution, custody and clearing for certain client accounts, and Kayne Anderson Rudnick may have a potential incentive to suggest the use of FBS and its affiliates to its advisory clients, whether or not those clients were referred to Kayne Anderson Rudnick as part of the WAS Program. Under an agreement with SAI, Kayne Anderson Rudnick has agreed that Advisor will not charge clients more than the standard range of advisory fees disclosed in its Form ADV 2A Brochure to cover solicitation fees paid to SAI as part of the WAS Program. Pursuant to these arrangements, Kayne Anderson Rudnick has agreed not to solicit clients to transfer their brokerage accounts from affiliates of SAI or establish brokerage accounts at other custodians for referred clients other than when Kayne Anderson Rudnick's fiduciary duties would so require, and Advisor has agreed to pay SAI a one-time fee equal to 0.75% of the assets in a client account that is transferred from SAI's affiliates to another custodian; therefore Kayne Anderson Rudnick may have an incentive to suggest that referred clients and their household members maintain custody of their accounts with affiliates of SAI. However, participation in the WAS Program does not limit Kayne Anderson Rudnick's duty to select brokers on the basis of best execution.

While the specific terms of each agreement can differ, the referral source typically receives a percentage of the management fees received by Kayne Anderson Rudnick from accounts referred by the referral source. In some cases, referral fees can be based on a percent of the assets under management from accounts referred by the referral source. Referral fees are paid by Kayne Anderson Rudnick and not the client. Referral source compensation is not a factor in determining, nor does it adversely affect, the fee Kayne Anderson Rudnick charges for its investment management or advisory services.

As a condition of a wrap program, the wrap sponsor may be directly or indirectly registered as an investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. Such wrap sponsors may request the firm to directly or indirectly pay for some of a wrap sponsor's marketing and advertising expenses, which also can include certain incentive programs. To this extent, Kayne Anderson Rudnick could be deemed to be sharing its fees with another investment firm.

Item 15 – Custody

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, bank, or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client investment assets. Kayne Anderson Rudnick urges clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that Kayne Anderson Rudnick provides to clients. Kayne Anderson Rudnick's statements can vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Kayne Anderson Rudnick's investment management clients' assets are held at unaffiliated qualified custodians. Although Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not hold these assets, it is deemed to have custody for purposes of amended Rule 206(4)-2 of the Advisors Act due to: (A) in managing its clients' accounts, the ability to deduct management fees from clients' accounts and receive such payment from the clients' custodians; and (B) the fact that some of Kayne Anderson Rudnick's clients have created through their Custodian (with Kayne Anderson Rudnick's facilitation) standing third-party money movement instructions giving Kayne Anderson Rudnick the ability to direct the custodian to send the account owner's (client's) money to such third party.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Kayne Anderson Rudnick has full discretion to buy and sell securities without prior client approval under its investment advisory contract with the client. (Kayne Anderson Rudnick holds a limited power of attorney to act without prior consultation). Kayne Anderson Rudnick exercises its investment discretion consistent with its investment philosophy, as well as any investment guidelines or restrictions imposed by client and accepted by Kayne Anderson Rudnick. Because Kayne Anderson Rudnick will be managing the Kayne Anderson Rudnick Long/Short Fund LLC, we will be deemed as having custody on this one account. Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not maintain actual custody over any client assets. Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not advise clients for a fee with respect to (i) holdings outside their managed accounts or (ii) holdings in their managed accounts which are designated as unsupervised at the direction of or with notice to the client.

Class Actions

A securities "class action" lawsuit is a civil suit brought by one or more people ("Plaintiffs") on behalf of themselves and others who have the same grievance against the issuer of a certain security.

When a class action is filed, a written notice of filing or settlement is prepared (the "Notice"), which outlines the reasons for the lawsuit, the parameters for qualification as a member of the class and certain legal rights that need to be considered before becoming a member of the class (i.e., participating in the settlement). In addition, the Notice contains instructions issued by the court to brokers/dealers and/or other nominees (e.g., custodians) who receive the Notice and who hold the security on behalf of the owner/beneficiary, to either (1) Provide the Claims Administrator (usually the attorney for the Plaintiffs) with the name and address of each such owner/beneficiary so the Claims Administrator can send the Notice directly to such owner/beneficiary, or (2) Request additional copies of the Notice and send the Notice directly to the owner/beneficiary.

In some cases, in addition to the owner/beneficiary, Kayne Anderson Rudnick may also receive notification of a class action. Since, as described above, the broker/dealer, nominee, or Claims Administrator is responsible for sending the Notice to the owner/beneficiary of the security, and Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not hold securities on behalf of its clients, Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not send any additional notification to its clients.

Because each class action involves certain legal rights that must be considered by the owner/beneficiary of the security before becoming a member of the class, Kayne Anderson Rudnick generally cannot instruct, or give advice to its clients on whether or not to participate as a member of the class.

In addition, since (1) the client, not Kayne Anderson Rudnick, is the owner/beneficiary of the securities that Kayne Anderson Rudnick purchases in a client's account, and (2) Kayne Anderson Rudnick does not have any knowledge of whether or not the client purchased the security in any account not managed by Kayne Anderson Rudnick, Kayne Anderson Rudnick cannot automatically file a claim on the client's behalf in any class action. Generally, the client will be asked to contact their custodian for transaction information, however, if the client requests additional assistance, Kayne Anderson Rudnick provides the client with any transaction information pertaining to the client's account that may be helpful and/or needed in order for the client to file a proof of claim in a class action.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

Summary Of Proxy Voting Policy

Kayne Anderson Rudnick has adopted and implemented policies and procedures that we believe are reasonably designed to ensure that proxies are voted in the best interest of our clients, in accordance with our fiduciary duties and SEC rule 206(4)-6 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

The principles for voting proxies are as follows:

1. The firm votes all proxies to, in its opinion, maximize shareholder value, which is defined as long-term value through dividend and price appreciation. In addition, the firm's investment philosophy is to purchase "Quality" companies for the portfolios of its clients. One of the four main criteria for "Quality" is excellence in management. Hence, the firm tends to vote non-shareholder-value issues in alignment with management's recommendations, if there is no conflict with shareholder value. For example, "Poison Pills" and other anti-takeover measures are not supported, even if recommended by management.
2. To assist in analyzing proxies, Kayne Anderson Rudnick subscribes to Institutional Shareholder Services ("ISS"), an unaffiliated third party corporate governance research service that provides in-depth analyses of shareholder meeting agendas and vote recommendations. Kayne Anderson Rudnick fully reviews and approves the ISS Proxy Voting Guidelines and follows their recommendations on most issues brought to a shareholder vote. In special circumstances, where a Kayne Anderson Rudnick research analyst or portfolio manager believes that any ISS recommendation would be to the detriment of our investment clients, Kayne Anderson Rudnick will override an ISS recommendation. Two members of the Risk and Compliance Committee can approve an override. Additionally, Kayne Anderson Rudnick utilizes ISS to vote proxies on its behalf, per the guidelines discussed above.
3. Absent any special circumstance, the Proxy Voting Guidelines are followed when voting proxies.
4. Kayne Anderson Rudnick can occasionally be subject to conflicts of interest in the voting of proxies because of business or personal relationships it maintains with persons having an interest in the outcome of specific votes. Kayne Anderson Rudnick and its employees can also occasionally have business or personal relationships with other proponents of proxy proposals, participants in proxy contests, corporate directors, or candidates for directorships. If, at any time, the responsible voting parties become aware of any type of potential conflict of interest relating to a particular proxy proposal, they will promptly report such conflict to the Chief Compliance Officer. Conflicts of interest are handled in various ways depending on the type and materiality.

The Proxy Voting Policy and Guidelines are posted on the public section of the firm's website, www.kayne.com. For a copy of the policy or guidelines and inquiries regarding how a specific proxy proposal was voted, please contact Judith Ridder at 310.712.2909.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide you with certain financial information or disclosures about Kayne Anderson Rudnick's financial condition. Kayne Anderson Rudnick has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding

Item 19 – Miscellaneous

Cost Basis Reporting

The Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 contains new requirements for brokerage firms and mutual fund companies regarding customer statements and Internal Revenue Reporting. This Act requires brokers to report adjusted basis for taxable accounts to the IRS and taxpayers via Form 1099-B beginning in 2011. While Kayne Anderson Rudnick will strive to match the custodian's method to calculate gains and losses, it can only be on a best efforts basis. The custodian's statements are the client's official books and records of their holding and the clients should rely solely on the information provided by their custodian. Clients should consult with their tax advisor for additional assistance.

Notifications Of Additions Or Withdrawals

Clients should notify Kayne Anderson Rudnick in writing and in advance each time funds or securities are deposited to, or withdrawn from, a client's account.

Outsourcing/Service Providers

The Firm conducts appropriate due diligence on any outside vendor that provides products or services to the Firm and enters into an appropriate contract. The Firm's relationships with outside vendors are managed so that appropriate controls and oversight are in place to protect the Firm's interests, including safeguarding of private and confidential information regarding the Firm's clients and employees.
